

NON-FACULTY PROFESSIONAL STAFF COMPLAINT DUE PROCESS PROCEDURE

COVERAGE AND ELIGIBILITY

Non-Faculty professional staff members who feel that there has been a violation, misinterpretation, or inequitable application of University policy may bring their concerns forward through the process provided below. This policy does not apply to termination of employment and does not apply to complaints of discrimination or harassment based on a protected category because UNE has specific policies to address such complaints. If you believe that you have been discriminated against or harassed based on a protected category, you may address those directly with your supervisor or Human Resources and you should consult the applicable policies contained in UNE's Personnel Handbook, which includes an Anti-Harassment policy, a Title IX policy, an Anti-Bullying policy, a Non-Discrimination and Accommodations of Individuals with Disabilities policy, and a Whistle-Blower Protection policy. The University prohibits and will not tolerate discrimination in employment, the provision of academic services or in any other area of University life based on race, color, sex, physical or mental disability, religion, age, ancestry, national origin, sexual orientation, gender identity and/or expression, ethnicity, genetic information, HIV status, or status as a veteran.

PROCEDURES

Initiating a Complaint

First steps:

Generally, it is preferable for concerns to be addressed between co-workers and supervisors through ongoing discussions before a concern is elevated in accordance with this policy.

- Professional staff members are encouraged to and should first seek to address their concerns with their immediate supervisor.
- If the concern is about the professional staff member's supervisor or the professional staff member believes that their supervisor cannot resolve the concern, they may go directly to their department leader or senior leader.
- If the concern remains unresolved after the professional staff member seeks resolution through their supervisor, they may address their concern with their department leader or senior leader.
- If the concern is about the professional staff member's department leader or senior leader or the professional staff member believes that their department leader or senior leader cannot resolve the concern, the professional staff member may go directly to the Dean of their college or the appropriate Senior Administrative Officer.

To be clear, if, at any time, a concern is about any particular member of leadership, the professional staff member may address their concern with the next higher level of leadership.

Second steps:

If the concern remains unresolved to the satisfaction of the professional staff member or if taking the first steps of discussing the concern with a supervisor, department leader, or senior leader, within ten (10) calendar days of the act or omission giving rise to the concern, or within ten (10) calendar days of the professional staff member's knowledge of the act or omission giving rise to the concern, or within ten (10) calendar days of the most recent offer of a resolution, whichever is later, the professional staff member

- the policy or standard which is alleged to have been violated if any;
- the names of those persons causing the concern;
- the names of any persons with knowledge of the act or omission giving rise to the concern;
- the remedy requested.

The administrator receiving the complaint will review the matter and look into the circumstances or will appoint a designate to look into the circumstances and report findings and recommendations to them. The administrator will then provide the professional staff member and the department leader or senior leader
